worked to tend the fields, pastures, and gardens	slaves were used by their masters as blacksmiths or carpenters	They served as domestics, tending to the master's family as cooks, servants and housemaids and were often starved and even raped.	They were sources of strength for slaves, and they infused both with African culture and meaning. Because slaves often did not have the means to obtain many musical instruments, they often improvised and used their feet to tap out a tune in coordination. "Patting juba,"
